

Accessibility Statement

Using this website

This accessibility statement applies to the University of Essex Online website. This website is run by Kaplan Open Learning. We want as many people as possible to be able to use this website. For example, that means you should be able to:

- Change colours, contrast levels and fonts.
- Zoom in up to 300% without the text spilling off the screen.
- Navigate most of the website using just a keyboard.
- Navigate most of the website using speech recognition software.
- Listen to most of the website using assistive technology.

AbilityNet has advice on making your device easier to use if you have a disability.

How accessible this website is

The website contains a lot of pages and content in different formats such as written (including tables, buttons and various stylistic elements), images and videos. Its code is always evolving. Content modules can be enabled and disabled. The interface can be heavily customised using themes and thousands of settings. As such, it is impossible to say with 100% certainty whether the website is fully accessible or not. Accessibility is not a state, it is a process of continuous improvement in response to our users and the wider technical environment.

Reporting accessibility problems with this website

We are always looking to improve the accessibility of this website. If you need information on the website, please get in touch with us via our contact form or email marketing@online.essex.ac.uk.

What we are doing to improve accessibility

We are committed to improving accessibility across our websites and Learning Platforms. We are conducting a thorough accessibility review and implementing any necessary changes to our Learning Platforms and websites. An accessibility working group has been established to ensure continuous improvement.

This statement was prepared on 11th March 2022.